1,000,000 RESERVE RIFLES.

GEN. CROZIER SAYS WE WILL NEED THEM IN A GREAT WAR.

ne Detect in the Krag-Jorgensen Bit He Differs With Secretary Boot as to the Value of a Detailed Staff -Complete Fallure in Ordnance Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 .- Gen. William Crozier's testimony before the House Milliary Committee a few days ago, giving his views on the Army bill passed at the last session of Congress, has just beer made public by the committee. Gen Crozier differs with Secretary Root as to the value of a detailed staff system. He declared to the committee that in the Ordnauce Department the plan had been complete failure. Gen. Crozier said:

"It has been a complete failure, and I say this from the point of view of one who favors the alternation of service between the staff and the line. Last spring we had fifteen vacancies in the Ordnance Department, and now we have eighteen. We sent out to the army all over the world invitations to the officers of the grade of First Lieutenant, as required by law, to come up for examination for detail to the Ordnance Department. In the whole army there was just one applicant, over in the Philippines, who came up for ex-emination, and he did not pass, and we did not get one officer."

Gen. Crozier said that in his opinion there were now enough men to take care of the artillery defences. Speaking of the Kraglorginsen rifle and the probability of new rifle being adopted, he said:

There may be a change. The Krag-Jorgansan is not thoroughly satisfactory in the sense that no conceivable objection can be had to it, but it has been through fighting in Cuba and in the Philippines and in China, now, and it has proved itself thoroughly serviceable weapon. In China saw them get all clogged up with mud, and the men would take the gun by the barrel and wash it in the water and it would be as good as ever. However, it has one defect-not a great one. The metal is not symmetrically distributed. The magazine is on one-side, and, therefore, when the gun is fired, the muzzle throws to the left, the bullet passes along its trajectory, it drifts to the right, as with all rifles having a right hand twist. The result is that at short ranges the gun shoots to the left, and at long ranges to the right. So that it is not possible to provide a sight which will compensate for both deviations." Parker-Would it not be probable case of any large war we should need 1,000,000 guns? Gen. Crozier—In a large war we certainly would.

Mr. Parker—How long at the present rate of manufacture will it take you to have 1,000,000 arms on hand?

Gen. Crozier—Between fifteen and twenty years.

Mr. Parker—Would it not be good policy to increase largely the manufacture of arms so as to come quicker to that reserve stock? Crozier-I think it would be, and I

Gen. Crozier—I think it would be, and a think it would also be desirable to increase the facilities for manufacture. That, however, is in process. We are establishing an armory out at Rock Island which will be able to begin work in a year or two.

Mr. Parker—You could with your present facilities, as I understand, manufacture about two hundred thousand a year. So that in five to seven years you would have the 100 000 arms?

ne 100.000 arms? Gen. Crozier—Yes, sir; but that would be y working hight and day. Gen. Crozier declared that the improvement in the small arms is not rapid and added: "There is no likelihood of any radi-cal change in the ammunition. As to the guns we are now using there will be some improvement, one of which will be the correction of the defect in the symmetrical distribution that I spoke of. There is no other kind of gun that is in sight, and the only important improvement that has come to our notice is what you might call the semi-supportant improvement. might call the semi-automatic gun—a misket which, by its discharge, will throw out the old cartridge and reload itself. The small improvements to which I have referred will not so change the guns that all the various sorts of guns owned by the Government if, during the process of time of making 1,000,000 guns, those improve-ments are made."

CHINESE EXCLUSION HEARING. Mr. Livernash Combats the Arguments of Former Secretary Foster.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.-The House Committee on Foreign Affairs to-day continued its hearings upon the Chinese exclusion question, the first speaker, who occupied the attention of the committee for two hours, being Mr. E. J. Livernach, representing the California Commissioners.

Mr. Livernash spoke in favor of the bill that their representatives have agreed upon and which is pending in both Houses He said that it largely was a restatement of existing laws upon the subject of exclusion, a law which was found in several statutes and treaties enacted and negotiated since 1880. The continuance of the policy of exclusion, he insisted, was essential to the preservation of Occidental civilination and of the welfare and prosperity American laboring man.

removed or a President shall be elected. A law was enacted after the death of Vice-President Hendricks in 1886 authorizing the Secretary of State, upon the death or disability of both the President and Vice-President, to assume the Presidential duties until their successors were elected. the succession to go to other members of the Cabinet in order in case of disability of the senior member. The Secretary of Agriculture was not then a member of the Cabinet and was not named in the succession. Since the law was passed there has arisen grave doubt of the power of Congress to, under the Constitution, legislate on the subject. Many eminent lawyers and authorities on the Constitution contend that that instrument gives Congress no authority to fix the succession and that the passage of the act was an assumption by Congress of power which it does not possess. To set at rest any doubt as to the legality of the succession, it is proposed to pass the joint resolution for ratification by the States, adding to the Constitution the article confering that power on Congress. the Cabinet in order in case of disability of the senior member. SHARKEY MAY BE REAPPOINTED senator Platt, After a Talk With the President, Says He Belleves So.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.-Senator Platt ad a talk with President Roosevelt this morning in regard to the appointment of an Immigration Commissioner and a Naval Officer for the port of New York. The President has not completed his examinaion of the charges filed against Naval Officer Sharkey, but Senator Platt said o-night that he believed Mr. Sharkey would be reappointed within a few days. The representations that have been made to the President against the Naval Officer Mr. Platt believes to have been inspired by selfish motives and he is confident that they will not be sustained.

The Senator will take no part in the ap-

URGES CONCESSIONS TO CUBA

COLLECTOR BLISS DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN THE ISLAND.

Without Ald Many Planters Will Be Ruined -The Desire for Annexation Is Rap-idly Growing, and Will Soon Be Overwhelming Unless Reciprocity Is Granted

Washington, Jan. 25.—Col. Tusker, H. Bliss, Collector of Customs at Huvana, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee this morning to present the political ide of the Cuban reciprocity question. Col. Bliss represents Governor-General Wood, and was authorized to speak for him. He said to the committee that the Cuban planters who had suffered so disastrously through the destruction of their mills and the depression of business during the war now had an opportunity to get on their feet, and if the United States would assist them they would prosper. Without such assistance many of the planters who were now hovering on the verge of hankruptcy would be totally ruined.

In reply to questions concerning the ossibility of annexation, Col. Bliss said the desire for annexation was rapidly growing and would soon be overwhelming If the Cubans could not secure favorable trade elations with the United States the demand for annexation would be increased. Cuba, he declared, was willing and anxious to enter the Union as a State or as a Territory, inder civil or military government or in any other way open to it. He was not sure that annexation was desirable from an American standpoint.

Col. Bliss said that at the present time the banks in Hayana would not lend money to the planters and had assumed that attiide after the sale of last year's sugar crop. The planters were greatly in debt, the total indebtedness of the island being estimated at $100,000,000. He estimated the value of at $100,000,000. He estimated the value of Cuban imports at $66,000,000, only $28,000,000 of which came from the United States, which consisted principally of articles not in competition with other countries. It appeared from his statement that the majority of the merchants in Cuba were Spaniards, who also acted as bankers in advancing who also acted as bankers in advancing money to planters.

Col. Bliss said that there was no distress apparent in the island now, but he thought there would be great privation should con-

Bliss that annexation would be hastened if the Cubans did not receive some tariff concessions. He said the Cubans were anxious to send their trade to the United States but could not do so at present. All that was necessary for the United States to secure the trade, was free sugar. Cuba would not increase its output of sugar materially, he said, for years to come. To increase the output it would be necessary to import labor and the Cubans did not wish to do this. They had had experience with coole labor and wanted no more of that. Señor Mendoza estimated that Cuba would not reach a point where it would produce more than 2,000,000 tons yearly for ten years, and by that time the United States would be consuming 1,000,-000 tons, leaving 2,000,000 for United States

Sceretary Root has received a cablegram from Pedro A. Perez, representing the ayuntamiento of Guantanamo, Cuba, urging tariff concessions to Cuba and de-claring that unless this is done "frightful poverty will seize this place, which lives exclusively on the sugar industry." The despatch adds that work is being suspended and if it continues "the country will lose confidence and peace, and a stable government, which is the desire at Washington, will be impossible."

Edward M. Shepard, who was nominated by Richard Croker for Mayor last fall and was defeated at the polls, has performed an autopsy and written the report of it for the February number of the Atlantic Monthly. Mr. Shepard finds that the cause of defeat was too many votes for the other side and that Devery and Jerome both deserve credit for the fusion victory, while Croker is not so black as he is painted. First of all in the list of the causes that led to his defeat Mr. Shepard puts Dewry,

Whatever may have been the merits or demerits of Chief Dever's former career as captain, inspector and Super stendent of Police under the bipartisan box for of the public sentiment that put him on the defensive from the outset, it is certain that the power wielded by him in the borough of Manhattan, as practical head of police during the few months before election in 1901, aroused against himself, and, what was far more serious, against the party which, whether rightly or wrongly, was held responsible for his inemmbergy, an enormous and intense public feeling. With singular fatuity, skilfully goaded on by the press, he indulged until the eve of the election in crude utterances which strengthened the impression of his abuses and oppressions. His very energy—that most useful single quality after honesty in the head of a police force—seemed to possess a baleful fury, exquisitely disturbing to every person intelligently concerned for Democratic success. and of him he says:

Mr. Shenard thinks that Justice Jerom Mr. Shepard thinks that Justice selections was almost as good a campaigner for the fusionists as Devery. After saying that as the campaign opened there was a probability of Tammany defeat, but as it progressed there seemed to be a change for the better, from a Tammany viewpoint.

bility of Tammany defeat, but as it progressed there seemed to be a change for the better, from a Tammany viewpoint.

Mr. Shepard says:

But race the end of the campaign the tendersy tas offectively reversed, and enough of the original situation restored to assure Democratic defeat. This was the work of Judge Jerome, who was the candidate for the important office of prosecuting attorney in the boroughs of Manhattan and The Pronx At the last he became the tero or Prince Rupert of the campaign. Sounding the single note of a corrupt alliance between crime and the police force under the Democratic administration he addressed his atpeal to the simplest and strongest sense of morality. Better than any one else he adopted the text sterily given by Bishop Potter the year before. In effective, often rude, but often also most impressive manner, he produced the very deepest impression of his own truthtelling sincerity and utter courage. He was followed and histoned to as was no other candidate. He had the burning zeal of a true orusader, and to it were forgiven what were deemed mere faults of taste.

Mr. Shepard seems to think that Mr. Croker was crude, but sincere, and that the reason that he kent his power was that Croker was crude, but sincere, and that the reason that he kept his power was that, all things considered, he deserved to keep it. Of Croker Mr. Shepard says:

all things considered, he deserved to keep it. Of Crcker Mr. Shepard says;

The newspapers estimated, with practical genius, the danger of scattering fire and the advantage of a specific target from which their range should never be diverted, and which should have about it a personal and familiar picturesqueness sure to hold popular interest. This they found in Richard Croker, the leader of Tammany Hall. In cartoons, and in the virile and unweariedly continuous work of reporters and editorial writers alike, they held him up as a heavy, brutal, dull, insolent, corrupt, tyraneical, reckless, unreasoning, absentee, political 'boss' What measure of justification there was for this it is not within the scope of this article to inquire. I may say, however, that where, in our country, with our secret ballot and free and constant discussion, one man holds for half a generation (not for the five or six years of a Tweed, or the three or four years' popular military fury of an Alcibindesi the effective support of great masses of citizens of an industrial and highly civilized community fincluding, for shorter or longer periods, men of all grades of wealth, intelligence, and public spirit), so that his will is, or rather seems to be, theirs, a philosophic observer will probably believe that there are at least some errors or omissions in the portraiture. If not, then there are many problems, puzzling, indeed, in the history of Manhattan borough, and among them the nomination of so justly distinguished a character as Abram S Hewitt by Tammany Hall under the Croker leadership in 1886.

Mr. Shepard has a knife for Mr. Low, but he conceals it well, and to find it one has to read between the lines of the closing words of his article:

I hope that Mr Low will, in his great office, have a large and poble success. If he be

Jacob S. Millet. Lewis was arrested on suspicion of theft by Detective Sergeants Price and McCafferty in Sixth avenue on Friday afternoon after the man had been trying to pawn a ring. In the Jefferson Market police court yesterday he was remanded till to-day to give the police a chance to look up his record and to see if anybody had lost a ring of that description. McCafferty said last night that a woman was connected with Lewis's arrest and it was possible that there might be some interesting developments before the case came up in court It was learned that a woman who wore many diamond rings called to see the prisoner yesterday. The police wouldn't say who she was.

FOR M'KINLEY MONUMENT.

Supt. Skinner Says Teachers Shouldn't Solicit Money From School Children.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 25.-State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles R. Skinner has thrown a wet blanket on the proposition to collect contributions among the school children here on McKinley day for the erection of a monument. In his letter to Superintendent of Schools Bardwell of this city he says:

"The day shouldn't be made a special occasion for soliciting funds from school children for the erection of a monument. Our great State can be depended upon to do its share toward the movement without resorting to contributions from school children."

CLEANING UP THE BOWERY. Friday Night's Raids Are Only a Beginn's

-Pulls Are Cone.

Assistant District Attorney Train proseouted the prisoners arrested in the Bowery raids of Friday night when they were arraigned yesterday in the Essex Market police court. Alderman Tim Sullivan. Heary J. Goldsmith, George Engel and er Assemblyman Issy Cohen, appeared for there. The alleged proprietors of four of the seven places raided were charged with keeping disorderly houses. Warrants are out for the rest. All of the cases were adjourned till Tuesday. The twenty-s r women arrested were fined $19 each. The raids are the beginning of a vigorous attempt by the police to close up the Bowery dives. During the Tammany regions correctly a day passed on which one or more than the rest of the rest of the raids are the police to close up the Bowery dives. scarcely a day passed on which one or robberies in these places were not re-to the police. Most of the proprietor a strong pull, but they realize now the gone. All of the places raided are Sixth Assembly district of which Tim Sullivan is the Tammany leader.
